ASSURANCE.

THE EQUITABLE LIFE

Assurance Society of the United States.

120 BROADWAY NEW YORK

Assets, $38,000,000.

Surplus, $7,500,000.

The Popularity of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, indicated by the fact that for Eleven years its average annual New Business has been larger than that of any other Company in the world, is due, in a great measure, to its well-known promptness in the payment of Death Claims, and its rule never to take advantage of technicalities where an equitable claim exists.

As a GUARANTEE of this, and to counteract the pernicious influence of a technical policy, adhered to by many companies, the Equitable makes ALL ITS POLICIES, old and new, throughout the United States.

ABSOLUTELY INCONTESTABLE,

After the policy has been in force for three years.

"The Equitable Life has paid since its organization to January 1st, 1880, $51,882,736, and closed its books upon that date without a contested or past due claim."

The Equitable Life Assurance Society was the first to introduce the

TONTINE SAVINGS FUND POLICY,

And thereby to popularize life insurance to a degree before unknown.

By the late report of the Insurance Commissioner for the states of Massachusetts and New York, the Equitable Life Assurance Society shows the following strong points:

FIRST--The Equitable has a larger ratio of assets to liabilities than any of the leading companies.

SECOND--The Equitable saved more of its income last year than any other company.

THIRD--The Equitable's death rate was less last year than any other of the leading companies.

FOURTH--The Equitable realizes a higher rate of rent, or interest, on real estate than any other company.

The Society takes pleasure in referring to the following well known business men insured in the society, composing an

CAPITAL NOTES.

Personal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.--District Attorney Bliss and ex-Gov. Fletcher arrived in town this morning. They are here to take depositions in the case of Stanton vs. Schurz, for false imprisonment.

Fitzsimmons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.--Col. Fitzsimmons, United States marshal for Georgia, was given a hearing to-day by the attorney-general and president in defence of himself against the statements made by the special agent who visited his office.

After the Correspondence.

The senate in executive session directed its committee on privileges and elections to investigate by what means the full text of the Chinese treaties and accompanying documents (printed in confidence for the use of all members of the senate) became public last week in twelve or fifteen newspapers throughout the country. The resolution ordering this investigation was presented by Edmunds, who supported it in a speech, in the course of which he expressed the hope that the senate will subject any correspondent who refuses to disclose the source from which he obtained the documents to imprisonment in jail for as long a time as he may continue to refuse to answer the committee's question. The resolution adopted empowers the committee to send for persons and papers.

Wretched, Indeed.

Are those whom a confirmed tendency to biliousness, subjects to the various and changeable symptoms indicative of liver complaint. Nausea, sick headache, constipation, furred tongue, an unpleasant breath, a dull or sharp pain in the neighborhood of the affected organ, impurity of the blood and loss of appetite signalize it as one of the most distressing, as it is most common of maladies. There is, however, a benign specific for the disease and all its unpleasant manifestations. It is the concurrent testimony of the public and the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicine which achieves results speedily felt, thorough and benign. Besides rectifying liver disorder, it invigorates the feeble, conquers kidney and bladder complaints, and hastens the convalescence of those recovering from enfeebling diseases. Moreover it is the grand specific for fever and ague.

An Artificial Monastery.

The owner of a rich villa, a Sicilian nobleman at Bageria, near Palermo, has a fondness for satire, which he has exemplified in a novel manner. After occupying it for some time, he turned it into an artificial monastery, which you understand only after entering it. In the cloisters you see groups of monks standing, sitting, and kneeling, and you are about to retire, believing that you have invaded their privacy, when you discover that they are wax. They look exceedingly pious and solemn, as if they had entirely relinquished sublunary affairs, and fixed their hopes and thoughts on a very melancholy heaven. The sarcasm lies in their exact resemblance in face, form, and manner to the nobleman's different acquaintances, noted for their worldly and selfish disposition--well-bred egotists and sycophants, who frequent the tables of the rich and hang on the favors of the titled. Their secular expression is skillfully blended with one of sanctimoniousness, and yet the likeness is accurately preserved. The effect is ludicrous, and the figures are stinging sarcasms embodied in wax. The originals do not like it, as may be supposed, but they do not want to quarrel with the nobleman, of whom they speak as a humorist that will have his way, and so try to hide their chagrin. A number of new food-eaters have carefully kept away from the Sicilian's entertainments, fearing that they shall be reproduced in his monastery.

From Chicopee Falls, Mass., Edgar T. Page, Esq., druggist, writes that Mr. Albert Guehrer, under Wilds Hotel, has used that remarkable remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, for a severe case of Rheumatism, and it cured him, as if by magic. He also used it with great success among his horses, in cases of sprains, sore, etc., and it cures every time.

A Lucky Minister.

Rev. A. J. Mallory, of Wyoming, N. Y., writes: Dr. Thomas' Eclertric Oil cured me of bronchitis in one week. Our dealers all say they never sold a medicine that has given such complete satisfaction, for coughs, colds, asthma and rheumatism. Paul G. Schub, agent.

If you take our advice you will lose no time in calling on your druggist for "Sellers' Cough Syrup"--without an equal. Price 25 cents.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Never jump at conclusions. It's as bad as jumping out of bed and landing on the little end of a tack.

A girl in Rockford, Me., had her corset torn from her by a stroke of lightning, but received no injury herself. The young man, however, was killed.---Elmira Free Press.

A well-cooked breakfast will do more towards preserving peace in the family than will seven mottoes on the wall, even though they be framed in the most elaborate of gilt moldings.---Boston Globe.

A few years since, at the celebration of our national anniversary, a poor peddler who was present, being called upon for a toast, offered the following: "Here is a health to poverty; it sticks to a man when all his friends forsake him."

Judge--"How comes it that you dared break into this gentleman's house in the dead of night?" Prisoner--"Why, judge, the other time you reproached me for stealing in broad day. Am I not to be allowed to work at all?"

Two young mothers talked of the future of their babies, several weeks old. "I," said one of the mothers, "cannot decide what to make of my son." "Oh, I," said the other, "will make mine an author--very celebrated."

Landlady--"I fear, Brigitte, that these two herrings are scarcely sufficient for the whole seven of us." Brigitte--"Ohi, madame, I thought so, too, and so I added the heads of those we had yesterday."

"Miss Brown, I've been to learn how to tell fortunes," said a young fellow to a brisk brunette. "Just let me have your hand, if you please." "La, Mr. White, how sudden you are! Well, go and ask pa!"

Governor to Small Boy--"Benny, I shall keep you in if you don't learn your lessons to-morrow; I'm going to turn over a new leaf with you." Small Boy--"You can't turn over a new leaf; it's tear'd out."

An innocent youth from the public school brings his bleeding knuckles to his mother, asking for her sympathy. "How were they damaged?" asked the lady. "Oh, only against the other fellow's cheek-bone." "Poor fellow; how is his cheek-bone?" The scholar retires in indignation at the glaring absurdities of the female logic.

Jonesmith was intently scanning the stock list in his Bulletin, when his wife entered with her head tied up, and began to pace the floor, distracted. "Oh, Gus," said she, "I have such a horrible car-ache!" "Ifn," muttered the brute, absently, without looking up, "you must have it out." "Mr. Jonesmith," said the lady, coldly, "don't you think I could save it by having it filled?"

A poet asks: "Where are the dreams of the days gone by?" This is a singular query, even for a poet. The dreams of the days gone by are like the days themselves--gone by. A dream can't be preserved like quines and pears and other fruit. The poet can witness just as lively and startling dreams as those that have fled, if he will eat a mince pie, a dozen raw oysters, and some pickled pigs' feet, and drink a pint of cider before going to bed.

Skin Grafting.

The medical faculty of Danielsonville, and in fact throughout the whole of Winham county, Connecticut, are greatly interested in an experiment of skin grafting which has been going on there, and which has finally proved a gratifying success. On the 31st of December, 1878, Jesse, an eleven year old son of Mr. Edwin Morgan, an influential citizen of Canterbury, an adjacent village, fell into a shallow vat containing a solution of potash in boiling water. He struck on both feet, the liquid coming nearly up to his hips, and instantly the skin began to peel off. With remarkable presence of mind the lad leaped to the floor, where he lay unconscious for some time. It was found that the flesh on both legs had been so horribly and thoroughly boiled that no cells remained for a new skin to form a growth upon. The boy's life was one of excruciating agony for months. The seared members began to turn under the body, and actually "flexed" or knitted to the back of his thigh. A young physician, George J. Ross, of that town, finding that his older brethren had given up the case as incurable, and one which must speedily result in death, determined to attempt the salvation of the lad's life by skin grafting. He was "pished and pooped at" to use his own words, by the old heads of the profession without mercy, but the boy's parents imploring him to undertake the operation he was finally induced to try it. Over two thousand grafts were used, the mother of the child, a noble-hearted coachman in the family, the lad himself and many of the neighbors submitting portions of their cuticle for the operation. A prevailing desire was manifested to have the child live without becoming a cripple. Hundreds of visitors flocked to see the patient, and implored Dr. Ross to try a piece of their skin for the operation. The pieces of flesh were pulled off with forceps, and were about three times the size of a pin. The process of grafting is similar to that employed in horticulture. One of the limbs looked as though pitted with small pox. The grafts grow fastest in the spring months. One of them is put on a muscle, where it sinks in and deposits a cell, after which the top sloughs off. The legs are nearly restored to their normal and natural functions, and the child can walk a short distance without a crutch, but is still very weak from exhaustion and emaciation.
